

Arts & Culture

Art, books, dance, film, music, theater and more

Super stars

The city's youth takes the stage for a spectacle of talent.

Any kids with a penchant for hip-hop, rap or breakdancing should head to the Bronx this weekend where the All Stars Project hosts their bi-monthly talent show at Roosevelt High School. Designed to give inner-city kids a chance to perform on stage in as close to a professional manner as possible, the program features kids from all over New York taking the stage to show off their artistic skills. Acts range from synchronized step, dance, and singing, to the performance of skits, and instrumentals, both group and solo. Not only are the members of ASTSN performing, they're running the whole show—lights, sound, tickets, and publicity. So come show your support for a positive community program that helps kids hit the stage.

Sat 23 at 2:30pm. Roosevelt High School, 500 East Fordham Road, between Washington and Bathgate Aves (212-941-9400, allstars.org). Subway: B, D to Fordham Rd. $8.

